15 U.S.C. § 1057(c) ..... 10

28 U.S.C. § 1404(a) ..... 2

1 TNC does not dispute that its claims could have been properly brought in the 2 Eastern District of Texas. This case belongs there, and nothing in TNC's opposition 3 compels a different outcome. Nothing about TNC's or Le-Vel's connections to this 4 District are substantial, sizeable, or significant—contrary to what TNC contends. E.g., 5 Dkt. 58-1 at 1-2, 6. And nothing establishes this venue is a more convenient forum 6 than the Eastern District of Texas.

7 TNC's opposition is notable for what it lacks, including:

- 8 • TNC does not identify any offices or employees located in this District or 9 that otherwise reside in this District.
- 10 • TNC does not identify any sales numbers from the physical stores that it 11 alleges sell its products in this District, let alone any sales data related to 12 how these physical store sales compare to TNC's highest sales districts 13 and overall national sales, making a comparative assessment impossible.
- 14 • As for TNC's disclosure of its recent year of online sales in this District
 15 and in the Eastern and Northern Districts of Texas, TNC conspicuously 16 fails to provide any information on its annual sales for these districts 17 leading up to 2020, let alone any information showing how these sales 18 compare to its highest sales districts and overall national online sales, 19 again making a comparative assessment impossible.
- 20 • TNC does not identify any specific harm that it has experienced in this 21 District (in its complaint, TNC alleges a nationwide harm not tied to a 22 specific forum) (see, e.g., Dkt. 1 ¶¶ 58, 64).
- 23 • TNC fails to address various key operative issues at the center of gravity 24 of this case, including fact-intensive issues over the parties' respective 25 priority of rights, the validity of those rights, and the exercise of those 26 rights through the zone of natural product expansion, all of which are 27 based on facts found in Texas for Le-Vel, and none of which are based 28 on facts found in this District for TNC or otherwise.

TNC's failure to establish sufficient connections to this District warrants this case's transfer to the Eastern District of Texas, as it is a far more convenient forum. As it is within the Court's broad discretion, Le-Vel respectfully requests transferring this case to the Eastern District of Texas or, alternatively, to the Northern District of Texas.

I. The Court Has Great Discretion to Transfer this Case

This "court has discretion to adjudicate motions for transfer according to an individualized, case-by-case consideration of convenience and fairness." Jones v. GNC Franchising, Inc., 211 F.3d 495, 498 (9th Cir. 2000); see also, e.g., Fed. Deposit Ins. Corp. for BankUnited, FSB v. First Priority Fin., Inc., No. CV 15-03776 MMM (AGRx), 2015 WL 13357439, at *2 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 10, 2015) (stating the district court has broad discretion to transfer a case to another district where venue is proper) (citing Sparling v. Hoffman Constr. Co., 864 F.2d 635, 639 (9th Cir. 1988)); E. & J. Gallo Winery v. F. & P.S.p.A., 899 F. Supp. 465, 466 (E.D. Cal. 1994) (finding the decision to transfer venue is within "the inherently broad discretion of the Court"). For the reasons below, Le-Vel respectfully requests this Court exercise its broad discretion and transfer this case.

II. TNC Concedes Its Claims Could Have Been Brought in Texas

TNC does not dispute that (1) the Eastern District of Texas would have subject matter jurisdiction over TNC's federal trademark infringement and unfair competition claims; (2) pendent jurisdiction over TNC's state law claims would be appropriate in Texas; and (3) venue and personal jurisdiction over Le-Vel would be proper in Texas because Texas is where Le-Vel's principal place of business is located and where key Le-Vel employees with knowledge of the core issues in this case reside. The threshold inquiry under 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a) is therefore met. E.g., Skee Ball, Inc. v. Full Circle United, No. C-11-04930 EDL, 2011 WL 6749013, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 22, 2011); see also Cascades Projection LLC v. NEC Display Sols. of Am., Inc., No. CV 15-00273 SJO (RZx), 2015 WL 12698454, at *1-2 (C.D. Cal. June 5, 2015); Secured

1 Mail Sols., LLC v. Advanced Image Direct, LLC, No. SACV 12-01090-DOC (MLGx), 2 2013 WL 8596579, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 30, 2013).

3 III. Le-Vel Has No Significant Contacts to this District

4 TNC's claim that Le-Vel has "many" contacts in this District is unfounded. See 5 Dkt. 58-1 at 5-7.

6 Le-Vel is a Texas limited liability corporation with a principal place of business
 7 in Frisco, Texas. Dkt. 46-2 at 2; Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 2. The highest concentration of Le-Vel 8 employees is in the Eastern District of Texas and its nearby vicinity, including the key 9 executives and like employees that work in finance, compliance, supply chain and 10 distribution, operations, customer support, and information technology. E.g., Dkt. 46-11 3 ¶¶ 8-9. Le-Vel employees knowledgeable about THRIVE SKIN products are also 12 located in Texas. Id. In stark contrast, Le-Vel has no employees, offices, warehouses, 13 or servers in this District. Dkt. 46-2 at 2; Dkt. 46-3 ¶¶ 2, 4. THRIVE SKIN skincare 14 products were not designed or formulated in California; nor are they manufactured in 15 or distributed from California. Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 4. Le-Vel has no meaningful relationship to 16 this forum.

17 Rather than acknowledge the great weight of this evidence, TNC defaults to 18 contending: (1) Le-Vel's online sales to this District are substantial enough to show 19 Le-Vel targets this District; (2) Le-Vel has employees in the form of its Independent 20 Brand Promoters ("third-party promoters") in this District; (3) Le-Vel has employee 21 supervisors in this District; and (4) Le-Vel brought a lawsuit in this District and has 22 thus acknowledged the convenience of this forum. Dkt. 58-1 at 5-7. TNC's attempt to 23 manufacture a relationship between Le-Vel and this District based on such specious 24 grounds should be rejected.

25 First, TNC contends that Le-Vel's sales of over [REDACTED] in THRIVE SKIN
 26 products in this District are "sizable sales," which imply Le-Vel targeted this District.
 27 Dkt. 58-1 at 1, 5 (citing Dkt. 15-2 ¶ 5). Not true. Le-Vel offers its products nationwide 28 through its website without specifically targeting this District. Dkt. 46-2 at 4-6; Dkt.

46-3 ¶ 13. That some products may be sold in this District does not make this District convenient as a matter of course. See, e.g., Knoll, Inc. v. Modway, Inc., No. 5:19-cv-2238-DDP (SPx), 2020 WL 6784346, at *3-4 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 17, 2020) (transferring case even though the parties “appear[ed] to market, sell, and distribute their respective products nationwide”); cf. Vehimax Int’l, LLC v. Jui Li Enter. Co., Ltd., No. CV 09-6437 SVW (JEMx), 2010 WL 11527371, at *4-6 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 16, 2010) (finding plaintiff’s selected forum was not convenient notwithstanding defendants transacting business nationwide, including in California, and explaining that “the fallacy of this argument is apparent on its face—that is, as Plaintiff alleges that Defendants transacted business nationwide, Plaintiff’s argument is equally applicable to any district. Such facts clearly do not favor California over any other forum.”). TNC also omits that Le-Vel’s sales in this District are [REDACTED] of Le-Vel’s nationwide sales for THRIVE SKIN skincare products. Dkt. 24-2 at 2, 6, 23; Dkt. 24-3 ¶¶ 53-55; Dkt. 46-2 at 4; Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 13.<sup>1</sup> Yet in the same breath, TNC repeatedly contends that its own sales of [REDACTED] are [REDACTED] and cannot tie a party to a specific district. Dkt. 58-1 at 2 (asserting TNC’s online sales to cities in the relevant districts of Texas are [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]). Thus, by TNC own admissions, Le-Vel’s sales do not establish that Le-Vel has “many” contacts with this District. Compare Dkt. 58-1 at 5.

Second, TNC contends Le-Vel’s third-party promoters are Le-Vel employees, and there are at least [REDACTED] third-party promoters in this District. Id. Not true. The third-party promoters are “independent contractors engaged in their own separate business pursuits.” Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 16, Ex. 1 at 3; see also Dkt. 44-2, Ex. 1 at 3. TNC further inaccurately asserts that the third-party promoters sell Le-Vel products. Dkt. 58-1 at 5. They do not and, instead, earn commissions based on the purchases that their referred customers (whatever district they may come from) directly make from <sup>1</sup> TNC also ignores that “[REDACTED]” for Le-Vel, “[REDACTED]” Dkt. 46-2 at 4 Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 13.

1 Le-Vel via its website. Dkt. 46-2 at 5; Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 13, 15-17. Further, the third-party
 2 promoters determine when, where, and how they want to promote Le-Vel's products, 3 without specific "how-to-promote" guidance from Le-Vel. Id. ¶ 17. As such, Le-Vel 4 does not target, control, or direct third-party promoters' activities (whether they be in 5 California or elsewhere). Id.; Dkt. 46-2 at 5. These independent third-party promoters 6 do not establish that Le-Vel targeted this District, much less establish "many" contacts 7 in this District.

8 Moreover, as of March 14, 2021, Le-Vel had approximately [REDACTED] third-party 9 promoters nationwide, and only a [REDACTED] of those reside in 10 this District. Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 18; Dkt. 46-2 at 5. The more relevant consideration, which 11 TNC ignores, is that [REDACTED] of Le-Vel's [REDACTED] third-party promoters are 12 located in Texas, including its [REDACTED] third-party promoters nationwide, while [REDACTED] 13 [REDACTED] third-party promoters are located in this District. Id. at 5-6. To 14 the extent that these third-party promoters have relevant information, it would be the 15 Texas-located top third-party promoters who would have that information. Texas is, 16 therefore, the more convenient forum.

17 Third, TNC falsely contends that "online sources show that Le-Vel has several 18 employee-supervisors located in this District" based on information from LinkedIn.
 19 Dkt. 58-1 at 5-6 (citing Dkt. 15-2, Ex. B). Not true. As noted above, Le-Vel's third-20 party promoters are independent third-parties, not employees of Le-Vel. Any alleged 21 supervisory role these third-party promoters may have simply cannot be with respect 22 to Le-Vel employees. Dkt. 15-2, Ex. B. Additionally, Le-Vel has no control over how 23 these third-party promoters identify or associate themselves on LinkedIn. Hoffman 24 Decl. at ¶ 2. Any numbers LinkedIn may report are merely a result of third-party 25 promoters independently selecting Le-Vel through the "Experience" section of their 26
 27
 28

1 profiles. Id. This does not accurately reflect Le-Vel’s actual employees or the 2 positions (and roles) they self-report.<sup>2</sup>

3 Last, Le-Vel’s earlier lawsuit against Thrive Market, Inc. does not establish Le-4 Vel acquiesced to this District as a convenient forum. Dkt. 58-1 at 6. Le-Vel filed in 5 this District, which was where the defendant Thrive Market resided. E.g., Compl. at 6 ¶ 3, Le-Vel Brands, LLC v. Thrive Market, Inc., No. 2:17-cv-08951-AFM, ECF. No. 1
 7 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 13, 2017) (noting the defendant had an address of 4509 Glencoe Ave., 8 Marina Del Rey, CA, in this District). This is proper, and it does not establish that this 9 District is convenient for Le-Vel on an ongoing basis. Allstar Mktg. Grp., LLC v. Your 10 Store Online, LLC, 666 F. Supp. 2d 1109, 1132-33 (C.D. Cal. 2009) (acknowledging 11 the inconvenience for the defendant even when involved in other ongoing litigations in 12 same District). Nonetheless, that lawsuit terminated in 2019. E.g., Min. Order, Le-Vel, 13 No. 2:17-cv-08951-AFM, ECF No. 52 (May 3, 2019) (dismissing the case). TNC’s 14 cases discussing the purported relevance of ongoing litigation(s) in the same district 15 are clearly inapposite. Allstar, 666 F. Supp. 2d at 1132-33. Le-Vel is not “currently 16 involved” in other litigations in this District. This District is not a convenient forum.

17 IV. TNC Likewise Lacks “Significant Contacts” With This District

18 TNC contends it has “significant contacts” in this District. See, e.g., Dkt. 58-1 19 at 2-3, 6. But TNC does not reside in this District. It has no offices in this District, and 20 it appears that TNC has no employees located in this District.<sup>3</sup> TNC argues that it has 21 “significant contacts” because it has sold THRIVE skincare products in a handful of 22 physical stores in this District since 2015. Dkt. 58-2 ¶ 7. Rather than disclose exactly 23 how many stores sell its products in this District, TNC identifies “six to eight” stores 24 it considers exemplary but neglects to provide any sales information associated with 25

 27 <sup>2</sup> Le-Vel cited a LinkedIn page associated with “Thrive Natural Company” to 28 show that TNC might have an employee located in Van Alstyne, Texas. See Dkt. 46-2 at 6; Dkt. 44-3 ¶ 10, Exhibit 9. TNC argued that this company page on LinkedIn did not accurately capture its employees. Dkt. 58-1 at 6. TNC cannot have it both ways.

1 those stores. See id. As the record currently stands, Le-Vel (as well as this Court) is 2 left unable to evaluate precisely how “significant” this connection compares to TNC’s 3 established presence on a national level or otherwise.

4 TNC also summarily contends that its online sales in this District “have been 5 [REDACTED].” Dkt. 58-1 at 2; Dkt. 58-2 ¶ 10. The record, however, categorically fails to 6 support such a contention. TNC provides snapshot sales information for the limited 7 time-period between March 2020 and February 2021, notwithstanding its alleged sales
 8 claims of THRIVE products in this District since 2015. Dkt. 58-2 ¶ 7. Nor does TNC 9 disclose which products it has sold, i.e., men’s grooming products or more traditional 10 unisex skincare products like lotions and sunscreens that it launched in late 2019 into 11 early 2020. Id. at ¶¶ 7-8, 10-11. Such purposeful vagaries indicate TNC’s THRIVE 12 product sales before March 2020 were marginal, at best.

13 Nor does TNC contend that this District is the location with its highest sales, let 14 alone indicate where such sales rank overall. The sum of such piecemeal contentions 15 falls far short of “significant contacts” in this District. As for TNC’s attendance at an 16 Expo over six years ago, and the location of its outside counsel in this District, those 17 contacts cannot remedy the void of truly significant contacts with this District. See 18 Dkt. 58-2 ¶ 12; Yeti Data, Inc. v. Snowflake, Inc., No. CV 20-6595 PA (AFMx), 2020 19 WL 8174630, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 9, 2020) (“that Plaintiff has retained counsel in 20 this District deserves no deference”).

21 V. The Center of Gravity of This Dispute Is in the Eastern District of 22 Texas, and the Nearby Northern District of Texas

23 As this Court held in Secured Mail, “even if litigating in the transferee district 24 would cause inconvenience to the plaintiff’s witnesses, the ‘center of gravity’ of the 25 infringing activity ultimately tips the scales” in favor of transfer. 2013 WL 8596579, 26 at *3 (citing both Motorola Mobility, Inc. v. Microsoft Corp., No. 11-3136, 2011 WL
 27 5834923, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 21, 2011), and TraceWilco, Inc. v. Symantec Corp., 28 No. 08-80877-CIV, 2009 WL 455432, at *3-4 (S.D. Fla. Feb. 23, 2009), inter alia).

1 That is the case here, irrespective of TNC’s allegations regarding its purported witness 2 convenience.

3 TNC alleges that this District has more contacts related to TNC’s claim of 4 trademark infringement than Texas, and its case should remain here as a result. Dkt.
5 58-1 at 7-9. Rather than focus on the numerous issues presented by this case in its 6 entirety—e.g., issues concerning the priority of trademark rights (Eastern District of 7 Texas), issues concerning the underlying validity of TNC’s asserted registrations 8 (Northern District of California), issues of the parties’ products and their respective 9 zones of expansion (Eastern District of Texas and Northern District of California)— 10 TNC focuses only on a geocentric comparison of the likelihood of confusion between 11 this District and Texas. TNC contends that, because it never sold products in physical 12 stores in Texas, because it has “minimal” sales in Texas compared to California, and 13 because it sold THRIVE products in a few physical stores in this District, a likelihood 14 of confusion can be more readily assessed in this District than in Texas. Id. This is a 15 pure strawman. Further, if TNC’s contorted logic is applied to Le-Vel’s comparative 16 district-centric product sales, it strongly supports transfer to Texas.

17 First, Le-Vel has never sold products in physical stores in this District (it only 18 sells products online). Hoffman Decl. at ¶ 3. Second, Le-Vel has [REDACTED] sales in 19 California compared to Texas. Dkt. 46-2 at 15. Third, Le-Vel initially developed, 20 distributed, and sold its THRIVE products from the Eastern and Northern Districts of 21 Texas. Those facts favor transfer or are neutral. See Yeti, 2020 WL 8174630, at *3<sup>4</sup> 22 (emphasizing that “whether defendants’ website is accessible to those who reside in 23 this District is not sufficient to establish that venue is proper”); see Armor All/STP 24 Prods. Co. v. TSI Prods., Inc., No. 3:17-cv-1131 (MPS), 2018 WL 9812123, at *4 (D.
25 Conn. Aug. 30, 2018) (finding this factor “largely neutral” when considering location 26

27 <sup>4</sup> TNC’s attempts to distinguish this case are unavailing, as TNC presumes the 28 conclusion it seeks. See Dkt. 58-1 at 9. Like the parties in Yeti, neither party here is a resident of this District, and Le-Vel lacks significant ties to this District (as discussed above) beyond the mere “operating [of] an interacting website.” Id.

1 of the alleged confusion as well as where alleged infringing products were designed 2 and developed); Secured Mail, 2013 WL 8596579, at *3-4 (citing Teleconference Sys.
 3 v. Procter & Gamble Pharm., Inc., 676 F. Supp. 2d 321, 331 (D. Del. 2009) and then 4 noting in that case, “location of allegedly infringing conduct was neutral factor where 5 it occurred in both [the] chosen forum and transferee district”). And, of course, TNC’s 6 allegations of infringement are not geocentric, as TNC seeks relief on a national scale.
 7 TNC cannot show that this District is the epicenter of marketplace convergence of the 8 parties’ products, and it cannot specifically show that this District is the epicenter over 9 Texas, where the alleged acts of trademark infringement originate and where Le-Vel’s

10 [REDACTED].
 11 TNC also ignores critical parts of this case—namely, Le-Vel has a priority of 12 rights claim to the THRIVE trademark based on its prior common law rights and its 13 zone of natural product expansion from vitamins and skin-based nutritional patches 14 into skincare products. The question of priority over the THRIVE mark is central to 15 the underlying dispute, which TNC completely failed to address. Dkt. 46-2 at 1, 12-16 13. As Le-Vel explained in its opening motion, TNC claims rights in THRIVE from 17 September 11, 2012, which was the filing date of its application that later matured into 18 registration on January 14, 2014. That application’s filing date (September 11, 2012)
 19 and registration date (January 14, 2014) fall after Le-Vel’s first use of its THRIVE
 20 mark on August 24, 2012. Id. at 1. And Le-Vel’s continuing use of its THRIVE mark 21 since August 24, 2012 resulted in a staggering [REDACTED] in nationwide sales for Le-22 Vel by TNC’s January 14, 2014 registration date. See Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 11; Dep’t of Parks 23 & Recreation v. Bazaar Del Mundo Inc., 448 F.3d 1118, 1121-26 (9th Cir. 2006) (“To 24 demonstrate priority of use, the [plaintiff] must prove [] it actually adopted and used 25 the marks in commerce prior to [the defendant’s] registration . . . .”); Kabushiki
 26 Kaisha Megahouse v. Anjar Co. LLC, No. 2:14-cv-00598 CAS(CWx), 2014 WL 27 5456523, at *1-5 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 20, 2014) (finding mark not incontestable “to the 28 extent that it infringes on another’s valid rights in the mark acquired under state law

1 by a use continuing from a date prior to federal registration of the mark” (citation and 2 quotation marks omitted)).

3 The relevance of this crucial Eastern-District-of-Texas-based fact is acute in 4 this case, as TNC’s claim of “constructive use” for purposes of “conferring a right of 5 priority” has an unambiguous and plain statutory language exception under Lanham 6 Act Section 7(c) for a person who “prior to such filing—has used the mark” (namely, 7 Le-Vel). 15 U.S.C. § 1057(c). Given that statutory exception, the parties’ rights in this 8 case default to their respective common law rights for purposes of priority, and those 9 operative facts are located in the Eastern District of Texas for Le-Vel and the Northern 10 District of California for TNC. The issues concerning which party has priority in the 11 THRIVE mark will be a key center of gravity in the case. And of course, another key 12 center of gravity will be Le-Vel’s exercise of its rights to naturally expand its products 13 (i.e., from vitamins and skin-based nutritional supplements to skincare products), 14 which, again, happened in Texas. Hoffman Decl. at ¶ 5.

15 In sum, a considerable portion of this case will focus on facts surrounding Le-16 Vel’s first use of the THRIVE mark and its natural product expansion from vitamins
17 and skin-based vitamin patches to skin vitamins and skincare products. See Dkt. 46-2 18 at 12-13. Before TNC was formed, Le-Vel selected and invested in its THRIVE mark 19 in the summer of 2012 in Dallas and Irving, Texas. Dkt. 46-2 at 12; Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 10. It 20 was at this location that Le-Vel, including its founders (discussed below), made key 21 decisions about the brand and trademark, marketing campaign, and design of product 22 offerings, including its vision of connecting one’s skin to nutrition through its vitamin 23 skin patches. Id. As Le-Vel’s THRIVE brand grew, so too did its product offerings, 24 naturally expanding from vitamins and skin-based vitamin patches to skin vitamins 25 and skincare products. Id. Thus, key “centers of gravity” for this case are located in 26 Texas, not in this District, as the operative facts related to priority and natural product 27 expansion strongly favor transfer to Texas.

VI. Witness Convenience Favors Transfer

TNC attempts to trivialize the inconvenience that Le-Vel's witnesses would experience traveling to this District. Dkt. 58-1 at 9-11. Although various Le-Vel's witnesses may be employees,<sup>5</sup> this Court has held "when the allegations in a case focus on Defendants' conduct, the convenience of witnesses favors transfer." See, e.g., Estrella v. Freedom Fin'l Network, LLC, No. SACV09-0189 DOC(ANx), 2009 WL 10678991, at *3 (C.D. Cal. July 9, 2009) (emphasis added); see also Thermolife Int'l, LLC v. Vital Pharms., Inc., No. CV 14-2449 RSWL (AGRx), 2014 WL 12235190, at *5 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 15, 2014) (explaining "[e]ven if Defendants' employees inconvenience may be accorded less weight, that does not mean that their convenience is given no weight," and finding this factor weighed in favor of transfer).

Further, Le-Vel would face considerable hardships if its employees were forced to travel to this District. Although Le-Vel runs a successful nationwide business, its operations are run by only [REDACTED] employees. Hoffman Decl. at ¶ 2. Requiring certain executives to travel to a district where Le-Vel has no headquarters or presence at all will undeniably disrupt Le-Vel's business. It would be far more convenient for those witnesses to travel to Le-Vel's central hub in the Eastern District of Texas, where they can attend to their regular corporate duties, rather than operating out of a local hotel in Santa Ana. E.g., Newthink LLC v. Lenovo (U.S.) Inc., No. 2:12-cv-5443-ODW(JCx), 2012 WL 6062084, at *1 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 4, 2012) (stating it is more convenient for witnesses traveling to the U.S. for discovery or trial to go to Lenovo's headquarters than elsewhere).

<sup>5</sup> TNC further contends that Le-Vel did not identify witnesses or the testimony they will likely provide. See Dkt. 58-1 at 9-10. Not so. For example, Le-Vel explained in its opening motion that, among other things, Le-Vel's CFO resides in Carrollton, Texas and is knowledgeable about THRIVE SKIN skincare sales. Dkt. 46-2 at 10; Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 9. And its president and chief legal officer resides in Florida and is knowledgeable about general operations, legal matters, and compliance issues. Dkt. 46-2 at 10; Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 12.

Further, TNC fails to identify non-party witnesses who could provide testimony relevant to the core issues, or testimony that is not duplicative of testimony otherwise attainable by employee witnesses. Dkt. 58-1 at 2-3, 11. This District has recognized it is not just the quantity of witnesses that matters, but also the relative “importance of the witnesses,” and why their testimony is relevant and/or necessary. E.g., Fontaine v. Washington Mut. Bank, Inc., No. CV 08-5659 PSG (Ex), 2009 WL 1202886, at *3-4 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 30, 2009); see Gates Learjet Corp. v. Jensen, 743 F.2d 1325, 1335-36 (9th Cir. 1984) (concluding that “the district court improperly focused on the number of witnesses in each location” and should have instead “examined the materiality and importance of the anticipated witnesses’ testimony”); Kiewit Infrastructure W. Co. v. Samson Rope Techs., Case No. SA CV 19-02501-DOC-ADS, 2020 WL 5092914, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 6, 2020) (explaining that “[t]he Court consider[s] not simply how many witnesses each side has and the location of each, but also the importance of the witnesses” (internal quotation marks and citations omitted)).

As Le-Vel addressed in its opening motion, its anticipated witnesses include Texas-based employees with particular knowledge about important issues in this case, including, for example sales information, compliance with marketing claims, and supply chain and distribution logistics. See, e.g., Dkt. 46-2 at 10-11; Dkt. 46-3 ¶¶ 8-12; Hoffman Decl. at ¶¶ 4, 6. Those topics are highly relevant to this case. For example, Le-Vel has four executive employees in the Eastern District of Texas—its in-house counsel, CFO, director of supply chain, and senior director of operations—who have particular knowledge of THRIVE SKIN sales and product distribution. Dkt. 46-2 at 10; Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 9; Hoffman Decl. at ¶ 4. Le-Vel’s director of finance also resides nearby in the Northern District of Texas. Dkt. 46-2 at 10; Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 12; Hoffman Decl. at ¶ 6.

Le-Vel further identified various witnesses who do not live in Texas, but for whom Texas is the more “convenient” forum. For example, those witnesses are Le-Vel’s co-founder, who is knowledgeable about the development, adoption, and initial

1 use of Le-Vel's THRIVE mark, as well as Le-Vel's long-standing plans to exercise its 2 rights to naturally expand into skincare, all of which occurred in Texas. Dkt. 46-2 at 3 11; Hoffman Decl. at ¶ 5. Testimony on this important issue will carry significant 4 weight. Le-Vel also identified its president and chief legal officer, who has knowledge 5 about Le-Vel's general operations, legal matters, and compliance issues. Dkt. 46-2 at 6 10; Dkt. 46-3 ¶ 12; Hoffman Decl. at ¶ 6. Each of the anticipated Le-Vel witnesses
 7 could provide testimony going to any number of core issues in this case. See, e.g., 8 Zimpleman v. Progressive Northern Ins. Co., No. C-09-03306 RMW, 2010 WL 9 135325, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 8, 2010) (explaining "[m]ore importantly, while the 10 testimony of [plaintiff's] witnesses to the accident is relevant, the testimony of 11 [defendant's] medical providers who treated plaintiff for her alleged injuries is more 12 likely to be probative regarding the central issue in this case—the nature and extent of 13 injuries suffered by plaintiff as a result of the accident" and finding witness 14 convenience weighed in favor of transfer (emphasis added)).

15 In stark contrast, TNC identifies no meaningful anticipated witnesses located in 16 this District. TNC's CEO, who is located outside of this District, already provided 17 testimony on TNC's brand identity, packaging, online and product branding, market 18 presence, and distribution into brick-and-mortar stores. See Dkt. 8-2, 28-4, 56-1. Thus, 19 each of the additional witnesses TNC identifies as residing in this District would only 20 provide cumulative testimony for these topics, again, including TNC's brand identity 21 and harm caused by alleged consumer confusion.<sup>6</sup>

22 For example, TNC identified two public relations/marketing contractors both of 23 whom would allegedly provide the same information—namely, testimony on TNC's 24 "brand identity and [] the harm caused to that identity by consumer confusion." E.g., 25

26
 27 <sup>6</sup> TNC has not alleged the occurrence of any instance of actual consumer 28 confusion caused by Le-Vel's use of its THRIVE SKIN name for its skincare products over the past two years, which is not surprising given that consumers purchasing such products are already familiar with Le-Vel's use of the THRIVE mark for its numerous other products.

1 Dkt. 58-1 at 11; Dkt. 58-2 ¶¶ 13-15. Further, one named contractor only worked for 2 TNC from 2014-2017 and therefore has no personal knowledge of any “consumer 3 confusion” about Le-Vel’s THRIVE SKIN product, which was launched only in 2019, 4 two years after she stopped working for TNC. See Dkt. 58-2 ¶ 15. Further, any 5 testimony from her on this issue would likely be improper expert opinion. The other 6 appears to have been hired shortly after TNC filed its complaint.<sup>7</sup> Dkt. 58-2 ¶ 14; 7 Woods Decl. at ¶ 2, Ex. 1. TNC’s post hoc reliance on the just-hired employee cannot 8 create post-lawsuit filing convenience in this forum. Obviously, it is unclear what, if 9 any, relevant testimony she could provide, given her short tenure at TNC. Dkt. 58-2 10 ¶ 14.

11 TNC also identifies a brand designer as a “likely” witness based on “extreme[] 12 knowledge[]” about TNC’s brand including “the importance of [TNC’s] brand identity 13 in the skincare industry” and “the negative impact of brand infringement.” Dkt. 58-1 14 at 11; Dkt. 58-2 ¶ 16. TNC, however, submitted no evidence showing that the 15 designer has specialized or specific knowledge of the skincare industry or that he 16 could provide any credible fact testimony about the negative impact of infringement.
 17 The remaining testimony appears duplicative of what TNC’s CEO already provides or 18 could provide, and it constitutes improper expert testimony. Again, TNC overstates 19 the testimony the designer could provide.

20 TNC also identified two TNC investors as possible witnesses. Dkt. 58-1 at 11; 21 Dkt. 58-2 ¶¶ 17-19. Again, these investors are identified as providing testimony about 22 alleged “harm caused to [TNC] investors by potential confusion.” Dkt. 58-2 ¶¶ 18-19.
 23 But harm to investors is not harm to TNC caused by alleged acts of infringement, and 24 it remains unclear how such testimony would pertain to any of the claims at issue in 25
 26
 27

28 <sup>7</sup> TNC choose not to specify the time period for which its current public relations contractor worked for it, leaving Le-Vel and the Court to rely on public information.

1 this case.<sup>8</sup> TNC’s other anticipated witnesses, including packing and manufacturing 2 vendors, are likewise deficient. The ultimate importance of their testimony appears 3 tangential to core issues in this case. Id. ¶¶ 20-23; Zimpleman, 2010 WL 135325, at 4 *2; see also Pyrocap Int’l Corp. v. Ford Motor Corp., 259 F. Supp 2d 92, 97-98 5 (D.D.C. 2003) (plaintiff’s anticipated witness testimony “appears to be tangential to 6 the central issues of this case,” and convenience of parties and witnesses weighed in 7 favor of transfer). Further, and as noted above, such testimony is at best cumulative of 8 TNC’s CEO’s anticipated testimony. In sum, TNC’s attempt to manufacture fleeting 9 and tenuous connections with this District through its proffered “witnesses” is grossly 10 inadequate. This factor weighs in favor of transfer.

11 VII. TNC’s Choice of Forum Has Little Weight in the Transfer Analysis

12 Despite the absence of meaningful connections, TNC insists that weight be 13 given to its choice of forum. Dkt. 58-1 at 4-5.<sup>9</sup> But TNC ignores the fundamental 14 exception—as recognized in the Allstar case that it cites—that “[a] plaintiff’s choice 15 of forum is entitled to less deference, however, when the plaintiff elects to pursue a 16 case outside its home forum.” Allstar, 666 F. Supp. 2d at 1131 (emphasis added).

17 Because neither TNC nor Le-Vel is a citizen of this forum, deference for TNC’s 18 selected forum is greatly diminished, and its choice receives “little weight” in the 19 transfer analysis. Kiewet, 2020 WL 5092914, at *3 (when “operative facts have not 20

21 <sup>8</sup> The relationship of such investors to TNC and its CEO was not disclosed, 22 leaving Le-Vel and this Court to speculate what investments were made and under 23 what conditions and prior awareness/knowledge that they were made, including the 24 existence of the various other alleged third-party infringers TNC is currently suing in this court (e.g., Thrive Causemetics) along with numerous other third-party infringers.
See, e.g. Thrive Natural Care, Inc. v. Thrive Causemetics, Case No. 2:20-cv-09091 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 2, 2020).

25 <sup>9</sup> To the extent TNC contends evidence of forum-shopping must be submitted 26 before any deference to its choice of forum is diminished, that is not the case. Dkt. 58-27 1 at 5. Concerns about forum-shopping are particularly prevalent whenever a plaintiff 28 brings suit outside of its home jurisdiction and the defendant’s home jurisdiction. See
Mitchell v. Deutsche Bank Nat’l Tr. Co., No. SACV 15-01307-CJC (JCGx), 2015 WL 12867746, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 29, 2015). That neither party here is a citizen of this forum is enough to trivialize deference that would otherwise be afforded TNC. See id.; Kiewet, 2020 WL 5092914, at *3. Further, TNC’s selection of this District merely because its counsel resides here is textbook forum-shopping in its own right.

1 occurred within the forum” and/or “the [chosen] forum is not the primary residence of 2 . . . plaintiff or defendant,” the plaintiff’s choice to bring suit in this forum has little 3 impact on the transfer analysis and deference otherwise owed is reduced).

4 TNC’s selection is also inappropriate because the operative facts have not 5 occurred in this forum, this forum has no particular interest in the parties (other than 6 that this is where TNC’s outside litigation counsel resides, which is a non-factor), and 7 the subject matter is not substantially connected to this forum, as discussed above and 8 in Le-Vel’s opening motion (Dkt. 46-2). See Kiewet, 2020 WL 5092914, at *3.

9 VIII. Local Interests Favor Texas

10 TNC incorrectly contends that local interests cannot favor Texas because Le-11 Vel has not counterclaimed for defamation in this case. See Dkt. 58-1 at 13. But there 12 is simply no requirement that such counterclaim be filed before any assessment into 13 local interests can be made. Rather, as Le-Vel submitted in its opening brief, TNC’s 14 impugning Le-Vel’s reputation and business practices calls into question the work and 15 reputation of Le-Vel and its employees residing in or near the Eastern District of 16 Texas, and who conduct regular business in the Eastern of District. Dkt. 46-2 at 13-14.
 17 Thus, the Eastern District of Texas has a strong local interest in this case. See, e.g., 18 Callidus Software, Inc. v. Xactly Corp., No. SA-CV12-01432 JAK (FFMx), 2013 WL 19 12136523, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 11, 2013). This factor also weighs heavily in favor of 20 transfer.

21 IX. The Parties’ Relative Sizes Does Not Outweigh the Other Factors

22 TNC identifies its relatively small size compared to Le-Vel and contends that 23 this size disparity should weigh against transfer. Dkt. 58-1 at 6-7. That is not true. In 24 Hackwith, for example, this Court declined to hold that the larger size of the defendant 25 precluded transfer. Hackwith v. Apple Inc., No. CV 09-3482-VBF(VBKx), 2009 WL 26 10674053, at *2 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 12, 2009). Instead, the Court found that, although the 27 defendant was a larger corporation that could “more easily” absorb costs, its 28 “headquarters are located in the Northern District of California, and accordingly, [the]

1 parties will have easier access to evidence.” Id. With easier access to evidence, the 2 smaller (individual) plaintiff “will not be overburdened” by a transfer. Id. So too is the 3 case here, where Le-Vel seeks transfer to the Eastern District of Texas, where its 4 central hub is located and where relevant events occurred and key witnesses are 5 nearby. Id. The parties’ relative sizes cannot preclude transfer here.<sup>10</sup> Mirza v. Cent.
 6 Asia Inst., No. CV 14-01542 MMP (PJWx), 2014 WL 12663437, at *6 (C.D. Cal.
 7 May 27, 2014) (noting it is not enough for a party to allege only the other party “is a 8 large corporation and far better equipped to absorb the expenses and inconvenience 9 outside its home district” (internal quotation marks and citations omitted)).

10 Finally, it is impossible for this Court to engage in any meaningful comparison 11 of size because TNC has failed to disclose what its past or trending annual sales have 12 been anywhere in this case. Without that sales information, no meaningful analysis of 13 the comparative harm TNC has allegedly suffered in this District (or elsewhere) can 14 be made against any national baseline, let alone show any alleged harm that TNC has 15 suffered stemming from Le-Vel’s allegedly infringing use of the THRIVE SKIN 16 trademark over the past two years.

17 X. Conclusion

18 As detailed above and in Le-Vel’s opening motion, the relevant factors favor 19 transfer. Le-Vel respectfully requests that the Court transfer this case to the Eastern 20 District of Texas or, in the alternative, to the Northern District of Texas.

22
23
24
25
26 <sup>10</sup> TNC greatly “overstates the significance of [the] relative-size discussion.” Cf.
 27 Mad Dogg Athletics Inc. v. Hart Wood Inc., No. CV 09-7027-GAF-FMO, 2009 WL
 28 10673203, at *5 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 30, 2009). Although TNC is smaller relative to Le-Vel, it still has six employees and allegedly earned [REDACTED] in sales in 2020. Even in the case of an individual suing a large corporation, this factor can weigh in favor of defendant corporations and transfer. See Hackwith, 2009 WL 10674053, at *2.
